

WE NOMINATE

Morroe Berger, brilliant 41-year old social scientist, whose scholarly interests range from jazz and other aspects of American culture to the problems of the Arab world. This "spring," as he enters upon his second decade as a Princetonian, the versatile Berger is assuming direction of one of Princeton's distinctive and pioneering regional programs, the Program in Near Eastern Studies, which is rooted in the conviction that study of the languages, history and contemporary problems of the Near East is essential—and never more so than in an era when the democracies of the West are enlisting the support of others in the quest for a peaceable world order.

New York-born and a member of the Class of 1910 at the City College of New York, Berger was first brought into contact with the Near Eastern Program some 19 years ago on a "crash," war-time basis. A World War II Army veteran with experience in the infantry, air corps and military intelligence, he was singled out in 1913 for the Army Specialized Training Program at Princeton, concentrating on the Arabic language and Islamic history and culture. From these initial contacts with the Near East, followed by military assignments in Arab-speaking countries, were to come years of specialization in such areas as the Near East's social institutions, political sociology and the sociological analysis of political power.

In 1947, while studying and teaching at Columbia where he was to receive his master's and doctoral degrees, Berger won his first high honor in the groves of academe, the Bancroft Prize in History given by the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History in recognition of his essay, "Jazz: Resistance to the Diffusion of a Culture Pattern." He has since established himself as a prolific writer whose publications, including the newly issued "Arab World Today," "Bureaucracy and Society in Modern Egypt" and "Racial Equality and the Law," mirror the broad range of his scholarship and his capacities for penetrating analysis.

Berger, the father of three sons, ranging in years from four to 13, was described several years ago by one of his faculty colleagues as "our commuter to Cairo." Thrice in recent years he has carried forward major undertakings in Egypt. Under the auspices of the Near Eastern Program, he spent the academic years 1953-54 in Egypt gathering material for one of his major volumes and returned there again five years later for additional researches. Late in 1960, once more in Cairo, he directed the international conference on "The New Metropolis in the Arab World," a major event sponsored by the Congress for Cultural Freedom and the Egyptian Society of Engineers.

A member of the University's Department of Sociology and Anthropology, and in wide demand as a lecturer, Berger has also taught at the University of California (Berkeley) and Columbia. This past summer, with the Kennedy Administration's launching of the Peace Corps, he was Visiting Professor of Sociology at Harvard, leading a band with the orientation of Peace Corps trainees. His affiliations beyond the reaches of the campus have extended from his services as a consultant to the 20th Century Fund's "Study of Megalopolis" to his continuing membership on the screening committee for The Ford Foundation's Training Fellowship Program for Foreign Areas.

For seeking to strengthen a program of far-reaching import to this nation; for his willingness to explore new approaches to ways of bridging the abyss too often separating the West and the Moslem East; for his abiding concern for the role of the American university in world affairs; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

WHO'S RUNNING?

Candidates file. Incumbents and newcomers will share the political spotlight this fall when Princeton voters go to the polls to choose two Borough Councilmen and two Township Committeemen.

In the Borough, Republicans William Walker and Alfred Sorenson will both seek reelection, opposed by Shaw Livermore, Jr. and a second Democrat who had not yet declared himself 24 hours before Thursday's primary deadline.

In the Township, Thomas P. Cook and John S. Mount have decided not to run again. Both are Republicans. Mr. Cook has served one term as Committeeman and Mr. Mount two.

The indication is that the Republicans will choose Carl Schafer, Jr., and John Green, although petitions had not been filed as TOWN TOPICS went to press.

Democrats in the Township announced at a testimonial dinner for William Marvel Saturday night that Mr. Marvel, defeated for re-election last fall, would run again this year. His running mate will be John Hite.

In this off-year election, with no gubernatorial contest and no senatorial contest, these skirmishes promise to hold the full attention of Princeton voters, although there will be a Congressional representative to choose.

Frank Thompson, Jr., Democrat, who has represented the Mercer-Burlington Fourth Congressional District since 1954, will run again, seeking his fifth term in office.

His opponent will be Ephraim Tomlinson, II, now serving his first term as the Republican mayor of Medford Township, Burlington County. Representative Thompson has a deserved reputation as a vote-getter and Republican candidates have found him stubborn to dislodge.

Salaries Increased. As a possible incentive to future candidates, Township Committee passed on first reading Monday night an ordinance raising the Mayor's salary to $2,000. Committee's salaries will automatically rise from $500 to $1,000 now that the Township is on the census records with a population increase. Mayor R. Kenneth Payne abstained in the voting, which was unanimous.

"There are many rewards in holding office," Mr. Fairman commented, "but it can be an onerous chore, and we hope this will be an incentive, particularly to young men, to run for office."

The state salary provision applies only to townships. In the boroughs of New Jersey, Councilmen serve without pay and mayors receive $500 yearly.

SNOW BRINGS INJURIES

One Accident Is Fatal. The March snowstorm which had been widely forecast as the inevitable climax to a mild winter struck this area and the eastern seaboard Tuesday.

Starting before dawn, it piled up four to six inches, slicked roads, closed schools and caused numerous power failures. The latter were far more serious in such areas as Lawrence Township, Pennington and Hopewell than in Princeton, leaving many homes and stores without heat and light for several hours.

Despite wind which reached 50 miles an hour in gusts, the snow failed to drift because it was wet. However, its weight caused many branches to break and was responsible for the fallen power lines.

The depth of the snow was more than felt here during the entire months of December and January. It did not, however, approach the March blizzards of the late '50s, when close to a foot of snow fell.

ICE FALLS: A sheath of ice covers the water tower of the Penns Neck water system and makes one wonder what must be coming out of Penns Neck faucets. The tower is about 200 feet away from Washington Road, and not visible unless one stands on Wilder Avenue. The photograph was taken with a Brownie by David A. Stives, 204 Washington Road, an employee of Mettler Instrument Company.

Crash On U. S. 1. A young Princeton woman was fatally injured shortly after noon Tuesday when her car was struck by a tractor-trailer at the intersection of U. S. 1 and Harrison Street.

Miss Chun-Kwan Auyeung, 25, was taken to Princeton Hospital with a fractured skull and fractured pelvis. She died about six hours after the accident. Melton Marshall, 23, of Trenton, driver of the large truck, told State Police that Miss Auyeung turned out of the cloverleaf across the highway against the traffic signal. There were no witnesses to the collision.

On Franklin Corner Road in Lawrence Township at 8:30 Tuesday morning, Mrs. Elizabeth Yard, 48, 12 Laurel Road, skidded and struck a utility pole. She was taken to Helene Fuld Hospital, Trenton, with possible internal injuries.

Two men giving Mrs. Yard first aid in her car were injured when it was struck by another. Casimir Sikorski, 39, of Franklin Road, was cut over the right elbow and Joseph A. Esposito, 53, also of Franklin Road, suffered a neck injury. Fred H. Combs, Main Street.

We were given a couple of arguments by our Navy friend about the value of aircraft carriers, which are pretty to the idea that they are sitting ducks. "First of all," he said, "a modern aircraft carrier actually is a self-contained, complete, mobile airbase, which, at any given moment might be at any point on the waters of the globe, the vastness of which is too great to be compared with any land area. So, which is less vulnerable, a fixed land base, or an aircraft carrier?" "Secondly," he said, "by way of illustration, when the insurgents seized that Portuguese ship with all the chasing and tracking forces knowing approximately its course nobody could pinpoint its position during the first 24 hours of search... what do you think the situation would be when a fast U.S. Navy carrier would be using all of its evasive tactics, and would be protected by an umbrella of its own air power?" It takes facts like these to carry such conviction, just as we hope the facts of our devotion to serving your needs will convince you of the many advantages of doing business with us. Land for Space
The Township budget for 1962 looks to the acquisition of $100,000 worth of land during the year for Open Space. Mayor R. Kenneth Fairman has pointed out that the township is one of the few municipalities in the state ready to move ahead with the "Green Acres" program approved by the voters last fall.
Under "Green Acres" the state will pay half the cost of land acquisition, with the municipality providing the other half. There is also the possibility of Federal funds amounting to as much as 20%.

To qualify, however, a municipality must have a "plan," and the Township's Open Space report means that the Township is ready.

TOPICS Of the Town

OPEN SPACE REPORTS
First Section. Part One of the report prepared by the Township's Open Space Committee has been submitted to the Planning Board and a public hearing in this section and on the remainder of the report will be held this spring.

In its report, the Committee states that its central concern is to suggest the preservation of land for recreation, conservation and for an attractive and efficient residential development pattern.

The need for varied recreation areas serving small children, elderly residents, sportsmen, nature lovers and picnickers "is evident to all," the report points out.

In the area of conservation, the Committee urges the preservation of open land as an ecological need and an absolute necessity in flood prevention, water supply, drainage and insect and stream pollution control.

EVER WONDER WHO YOU ARE? Photographs in unusual exhibit arranged as Lenten project by Calvary Baptist Church are placed on movable, brightly-colored blocks, with announced purpose of making viewers consider their relationship with other men and with God. Exhibit, which is part of Calvary Baptist's Lenten series on "The Church and The Arts," is entitled "Who Am I?" Shown here pondering the question is Linwood L. Davis, president of the church's Student Fellowship. Exhibit will be on display in Music Room of Murray-Dodge Hall, Princeton University, from 12 noon to 8 p.m. daily through next Thursday, March 15. A community tea, open to the public, will be held this Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m. Photographs are by Ed Wallowitch, free-lance photographer whose work has been included in Museum of Modern Art's "Family of Man." (Staff Photo)

Watch the Water. Conservation "also helps to prevent infiltration of polluted surface water into underground supplies and infiltration of surface water into the sewage system, currently a problem in the Township," the report says.

The Committee recommends reservation of the flood plain by zoning or easements, for Stony Brook and its tributaries and the designation of certain parts of the diabase geological section as "key areas" in any open space program because of limited water supply and inadequate drainage.

Open Space members urge "flood-plain zoning" to keep buildings off ground which could be flooded by a stream, and they request that the Township ask developers to dedicate a percentage of each subdivision for park land, or else pay an equivalent fee into a Municipal Park Fund.

Vacant lots in areas already built upon, should be acquired by the Township for playgrounds or general open-space requirements. Developers should be asked to follow cluster designs, and clustering might even be incorporated into the subdivision ordinance, the Committee believes.

Urges Dedicated Land. "Such practices as the dedication of walking easements by subdivisions, arrangement of buildings and roads to preserve natural characteristics should be encouraged."

To preserve open space, the Committee recommends an official map of all areas required for parks, forest reserves and general open spaces; land acquisition by gift, purchase or easement; and the maintenance of large-lot zoning in critical water areas.

In addition, the Committee suggests that the Township allow housing on lots that are smaller than regulation size if a compensatory area is set aside for park or open space as part of the development plan.

The school board is also asked to pinpoint future school sites for immediate inclusion in an Open Space map.

Permanence Sought. The following areas should be permanently preserved, the Committee believes: 730 acres on the Millstone and Stony Brook flood plains; 4 acres per 1000 persons for playgrounds; 10-30 acres for playfields; 25 acres for open and wooded land for walks, picnics and outings; 33 acres per 1000 persons of private lands reserved by easements for conservation 1320 acres of general open space.

The Committee did not take into account lands owned by the Institute for Advanced Study, the University or other private institutions, believing that eventually, these lands would be used by their owners for their own purposes.

"A minimum Open Space program must consist of land which the Township can be assured will be permanently dedicated for this purpose," the report states.

To organize and administer their suggestions, the committee recommends creation of an Open Space Commission to advise and implement, negotiate with property owners and supervise and control those areas not under the Board of Recreation Commissioners.

In addition, they propose a Township Department of Parks, Playgrounds and Open Areas to maintain and police all open space.

James C. Saven served as chairman of the Committee with Mrs. J. V. A. Fine, Gerald W. Breese, Howard R. Butler, Thomas P. Cook, Mrs. Gordon Knox, Mrs. Stanley C. Smoyer, William M. Sioane, Lyle Fitch and Simon Marcson.

BUDGET PASSED

In Township, Eleven Township residents, including the assessor who always comes anyway, were on hand Monday night in Township Hall for the public hearing of the first million-dollar budget in Princeton Township history.

"I think it's outrageous that so few residents take the trouble to be interested in something so important," commented Stuart Ninton, 422 Snowden Lane.

Cause and Effect

The jet that blew

Across our trail

Had snowflakes

On his saucy tail.

—BROKEN RECORD—

Snow — upwards of four inches — followed in the wake of Monday's sonic boom, burying the snowdrops that had begun to bloom. Spring's arrival was accordingly delayed, although there is still a possibility that it will arrive on schedule.

Little in the next few days will occur to make that seem likely. Temperatures somewhat below average, cold rain, or maybe more snow, about Saturday.

In an effort to get things going, Mayor R. Kenneth Fairman asked Administrator Joseph R. Nini to read his explanatory statement on the budget, and this primed the audience enough to produce a public hearing that lasted two hours. The budget, totaling $1,085,524.81 and pushing the tax rate up 30¢ per $100 of assessed value, passed Committee unanimously.

Highlights of the hearing:

• Committee budgets only for the present, and does not believe in raising taxes to build a reserve fund.

• The assessor constantly re-appraises Township properties and may recommend in a month or so, that Committee authorize another revaluation. The County is due to set another assessment figure, which may be 50% and not the 100% at which the Township currently assesses, said Stuart Robison, the assessor.

• The Township did not budget money for a consolidation study, as it did last year, but "we would break our backs," said Mayor Fairman, to find the money if the Borough decided to cooperate.

• $1,000 has been appropriated to make sketches of a possible addition to Township Hall, but such a construction project is by no means imminent.

• The tax dollar breaks down to 55¢ for schools, 23.5¢ to Mercer County and 20.7¢ for the Township.

Other Business. Committee passed, after public hearing, the ordinance to survey and design the re-alignment of The Great Road at a cost of $3,000. Shortage of engineering personnel in the Township makes it necessary to farm out this

WEBSTER'S DUCHESS: Christine Pickels plays the title role in John Webster's "Duchess of Malfi," which will be presented at McCarter again this Friday evening.

News Of The THEATRES

"DUCHESS OF MALFI"
First of McCarter Series.
John Webster's "Duchess of Malfi" opened McCarter's spring season Friday night in a production full of loud sound, fury and murder. With a play marred by a weak plot and disjointed action, these impressions were the sum of three hours in the theatre.
The pace was so rapid at times that motive and speech were lost in swirling capes and frenetic entrances and exits. By the time the last three bodies lay on the stage, the audience was ready for the laughter of relief rather than the gasp of inexorable tragedy.

As the Duchess, Christine Pickels managed to bring the lovelorn widow to some degree of credibility. Hers was one of the few voices heard distinctly at all times, and what she had to say was delivered with force and sincerity. Her scenes with Ferdinand (in her bedroom and later as his prisoner) were particularly effective.
Ramon Bieri (Bosola) was less successful as the "intelligencer" who would be otherwise. The character, used as the author's mouthpiece, is inconsistent to begin with, and wild eyes, a bellowing voice and swaggering actions could not disguise this basic weakness.

Brothers In Murder. Roy Scheider and John Heffernan played the Duchess' brothers who plot her overthrow. Again, the inconsistent motives and changes in these two characters make it difficult for even the most accomplished actors to present clear definitions.
As Ferdinand, Mr. Scheider approached this task through melodramatic devices: rolling eyes, overdone fury and a sinister lurk combined with inaudible asides. His changes from villain to remorseful brother to mad man were clear cut but inexplicable.

Mr. Heffernan, as the Cardinal, played neither the worldly churchman nor a villain with conviction, and lacked life even in the scenes with his mistress, well played by Georgine Hall. Her duels (badly-needed comic relief) was cohesive and coherent despite a clumsy death.

No True Hero. Tom Sawyer, as Antonio, had the thankless task of portraying a cardboard hero, the Duchess' clandestine husband. He handled his lines and actions with a certain amount of ease, but failed utterly in the Echo scene where the tragic impact of the play could be brought out.

Delio, played by Dennis Longwell, was Antonio's "true friend," a line too often repeated for comfort, and as such was another wooden character, useful for carrying messages around Italy and making arrangements.

In the lesser roles, Al Corbin played a good Doctor, again a welcome bit of comedy in the jungle of overplayed emotion. Anne Gee as Cariola threw many of her lines away, and did not bring life to her role until her death scene.

Many of the others were all but inaudible, perhaps partly because of Hugh Hardy's "scaffold" stage which requires a great deal of a performer's ability in both voice and movement. Both levels were used effectively in the production, directed by Philip Minor, although getting the characters on and off stage was confusing and unnecessarily tedious.

As an exercise in early 17th century theatre, "Duchess" might be called successful, and this production will probably appeal to a student of the period. To those who look to the stage for a cohesive portrayal of human action and emotion, the play leaves a good deal to be desired.

They can look forward to seeing and hearing the performers in more friendly vehicles later in the season, and will be able to judge the abilities of the McCarter company properly. Other performances of "Duchess" will be given at 8:30 this Friday and on Saturday, March 17.

WHAT'S ON TONIGHT?

"Merchant" Extended. Two of McCarter Theatre's spring Elizabethan plays are now running in repertory at the theatre, and a third, "The Merchant of Venice," has attracted such interest that an extra performance will be given on Saturday, March 24, at 8:30.

"The Duchess of Malfi," which opened the season last Friday, will be given again this Friday at 8:30 and "Macbeth" will receive its first evening performance this Saturday.

The Shakespeare tragedy has already been shown at many school matinees and at a special session preview matinee and has been seen by thousands of school children from New Jersey and Pennsylvania who have come by the busload to McCarter as part of their school studies.

"The Merchant of Venice" will be shown for the first time on March 22. Six school matinees were originally scheduled for "Merchant" but requests for reservations have been so heavy that five additional performances have been added. Nine houses are already sold out completely.

"JONAH" GIVEN

In University Chapel. The undergraduates known as The Chapel Deacons are offering to the Princeton community another of their arresting, thoughtful productions in "The Sign of Jonah," by the contemporary German dramatist, preacher, Guenther Rutenborn.

Opening last weekend, "Jonah" will be given again this Friday and Saturday in the choir of the University Chapel at 8:40. Admission is free and there is no "collection."

SOLO DANCER: Mary Bayer will be a Bride Doll in a performance Saturday at 8, given by the Peggy Longstretch Bayer School of Dance. Titled "Doll Fantasy," it will be presented at Princeton High School as a benefit for the Heart Fund.

"Jonah" is a play that sets out to be many things: an allegory for our time, a tortured examination by the Germans of their role in World War II, a philosophical dissertation on today's evil generation in its search for a sign and, hopefully along the way, an absorbing drama.

It concerns a group of actors who are about to give a one-act play about Judgment Day, in the course of which it will be decided who is responsible for the ills of the world and how the guilty party shall be punished.

A Dramatic Idea. Herr Rutenborn has an interesting dramatic idea and the Deacons elicit from his script the full measure of his meaning. He is enough of a dramatist to save his punch to the end and although a perceptive audience can see it coming, it is nevertheless dramatic when it comes.

However, "enough of a dramatist" is not quite enough and the one-act "Jonah" is not a well-constructed play. Herr Rutenborn starts, for one thing, to give us a play-within-a-play, but he drops the frame and returns to it in such a casual manner that the audience is never quite sure whether an actor is playing himself (actors even address each other by their own names) or the character he is assigned to play.

In addition, the playwright seems unsure of the effect he wants. "The Average Man" speaks at one point of "surrealism," but "Jonah" is not surrealism in any sense; it is earnest and thoughtful examination of the state of the world.

In lengthy monologues and dialogues—"Jonah" is a wordy play; you cannot mount a play of action between the choir-stalls of University Chapel—it seems to be striving toward a kind of Teutonic Shavianism, and "Don Juan in Hell" may well come to mind. But Herr Rutenborn is not witty and not particularly original. His "Average Man and Woman" and his Average Ruler, epitomized in this play by the Queen of Sheba, say just about what one would expect them to say about guilt and innocence.

One suspects that, for a German audience, "Jonah" is wracking. Repeated references to people who belonged to the Nazi party, to families who lost children beneath the flames of Dresden, to neighbors who betrayed their friends, make one feel that, within the darkness of a German theatre there may be tensions that are slack in University Chapel.

Given these difficulties, director Allan C. McClain has

IT'S NEW

To Us

THE USES OF PLASTIC

Press A Plant. An engineer (graduate of Princeton, we're told) who decided that the older rule held less profit than the marts of trade, has turned in his diploma and begun to make gift objects for, among others, the Princeton Gift Shop on Palmer Square.

"Nature Under Glass," he calls his creations. They consist of pleasing arrangements of leaves, grasses, pressed flowers and seeds under clear or frosted lucite and fibreglas.

Pine-cones, for example, rise in a small cluster under a half dome, paperweight of lucite. Smooth fibreglas place-mats imprison a collection of oak leaves and autumn-red cherry leaves. A tray frames, in maple, a group of large leaves, and a six-inch circle of clear lucite holds a gracefully formal espaliered flower with its leaves.

Walnut cigarette boxes have frosted lucite tops with leaves and flowers. Some book-ends on the way; we didn't see them) will repeat the nature theme.

Right out of the tack room comes a collection of cast-iron horses' heads mounted on white or walnut, for use or decoration. For use, you may buy a plaque of two heads, mounted above some brass pegs that could serve as a tie-rack for a sportsman or a belt-rack for a sportswoman. A lamp with a burlap shade on an oblong plaque would be fine for the wall of a den, and so would a single head, mounted alone and not useful at all; just for looks.

The Civil War playing cards we referred to in the box on this page are just a few of the unusual new cards now at the Gift Shop.

Some of the most brilliant are pre-Columbian cards with mazed designs in brilliant green and purple or in orange and violet, each combined with black. On the number side are Indian dancers and goddesses in formalized poses. You'll be so entranced you won't realize you have a full house.

Others follow a 17th century design, with the kings painted in life-like detail. Still others, made in Spain like the ones we mentioned above, show Spanish historical figures like our old friend Christopher Columbus and some of his ship-mates.

Coming for cocktails? The Princeton Gift Shop has some amusing new invitations including one that reads "An Informal Dinner" above a sketch of a dowager and her black-tied dinner partner eating on the floor. We like the cocktail invitation that says, "The main ingredient is you."

DIOR, FOR $3

Via Vogue. For a woman who sews, the most exciting new pattern book in years is the new Vogue Paris Originals and Couturier Imports volume now available for 50 cents at The Fabric Shop on Chambers Street.

Patterns from this book cost anywhere from $2.50 to $3.50, which may well make you gulp if you've been buying standard dress patterns, but $3 for a House of Dior suit with a new slim skirt, slightly flared at the bottom, side-buttoned jacket and wide, fur-banded scarf — well, how can you resist?

The catch is, you've got to sew it all up when you get home, but think of what you'll have when you're through!

Nina Ricci contributes her Braggart coat with its immense triangular tent closing, giving the illusion of a cape, and its under dress with oblique seams (ours always turn out oblique when they should be straight) and released pleat in back.

From Patou, there is a narrow dinner dress with no sleeves and bateau neck above a draped skirt and from Lanvin-Castillo a white satin evening suit with high waist and tuxedo jacket, or you may choose, instead, Jacques Griffe's brocade dress with deep back décolletage and full-length coat.

Seems rather odd to discuss wild-flower prints after such sophistications, but The Fabric Shop (on Chambers Street, as you know) caters to everybody with a needle. These prints are rather like Liberties, done in something called "powderpuff muslin", light as fine batiste and woven in 42-inch widths.

Peter Pan collars are delightfully forthright, display-

No, Not Franco

When you read of Civil War playing cards from Spain, you may wonder why the Spanish would commemorate their recent and bloody conflict in anything so frivolous as playing cards.

But the farther in time and distance, the mellowed the battle. What the Spaniards are doing is making playing cards depicting the American Civil War, and doing it handsomely, what's more.

You'll find Lincoln as the King, other important personages as other face cards (the deck was sealed, so we can't tell you who else is who) and the foot soldier himself in the numbered ranks.

These cards are part of a new collection at the Princeton Gift Shop, Palmer Square.

ing full-size daffodils, tulips, poppies and forsythia in natural color against white. But we like the variation even better: blue daffodils, violet forsythia and purple tulips!

New this year is a blend of rayon, dacron and silk in a 45-inch olive green textured fabric, with an olive avocado print on natural to harmonize with it. Choose the pair in solid turquoise with an overall print, if you wish. Not a wrinkle in any of these bolts, by the way.

Another favorite new fabric at the shop is the T-62 polyester yarn dacron, which in spite of its formidable name, is the most limpid of fabrics, supple as silk with shy little floral designs or deep-voiced modern prints. Comes in two weights, including a splendid crepe, white as chalk, to make the most dramatic suit in that Vogue collection.

MUSIC In Princeton

CASADESUS TO PLAY

With Princeton Symphony. Works by Mozart and Liszt will be played by Jean Casadesus when he appears as piano soloist with the Princeton Symphony Orchestra Monday at 8:30 in McCarter Theatre.

The young pianist will play the Mozart Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 21 in C Major and the Liszt Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 1 in E-flat Major. Nicholas Harsanyi will conduct the orchestra in these performances.

In addition, the orchestra will offer the premiere of Godfrey Winham's Composition for Orchestra, commissioned by the Princeton Symphony last year for performance at this concert. Mr. Winham, who lives at 100 Hodge Road, studied privately with Matyas Seiber and at the Royal Academy of Music, London, continuing his studies at Princeton University as undergraduate and graduate student. He has scored his two-movement work for the classical orchestra.

For its final offering, the Princeton Symphony will play the rarely heard Symphony No. 32 in G Major by Mozart. Tickets are available at the University Store or at the box office the night of the performance.

BETHOVEN WORK LISTED

For Glee Club Concert. The Princeton University Glee Club, in conjunction with the Bryn Mawr College Chorus, and the Princeton University Orchestra, will present Beethoven's only oratorio, "Christus am Oelberge," on Sunday, March 18. The solo parts of Seraph, Jesus and Peter will be sung by Janice Harsanyi, soprano; Robert Holland, tenor, and Woodward Waesche, bass.

It will be the first Princeton performance of this work, and one of the few in this country during the past few years. The McCarter presentation will be repeated twice in April, at Bryn Mawr College and at St. Thomas Church, New York City.

TO SING BRAHMS

At Amateur Meeting. Brahms' "Liedeslieder Walzer, Opus 52" and selections from the composer's Opus 65 will be sung this Sunday by members of the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs when they gather at 5 at Miss Fine's School.

Accompanying pianists will be Elizabeth Davidson and Frank Marks. Anyone who wishes to attend is invited to do so. Reservations should be made by Friday with Mrs. MacKenty Bryan, WA 4-0433 between 2 and 5 so that music and refreshments may be ordered for those who attend.

IRISH AND CHINESE

Both, With Style. The Irish are represented, this pre-St. Patrick's season, by a bouquet of linen sheaths at Hay and Clover, done in raspberry, powder or emerald green, with things like cowl necks and hidden back zippers. Lacie Ramage is the house, North Ireland is the source.

Hong Koog produces those sweaters over a collection of silks woven with a firm, regular texture having more body than the usual shantung. There is navy with a red-white sash, pink with orange-yellow, sand with olive-orange, and the like. The outfits are $39.95.

Irish linen shirts in the softest pastels an Irish mist can produce have no sleeves and deeply notched pan collars.

Gay Gibson brings to the juniors of the town a group of size 5-13 dresses, tailored and fancy. A navy silk has long sleeves, full skirt and round neck trimmed with white-fringed braid. A mate has a quilted black skirt with white outline tulips. Above the full skirt is a non-quilted bathing suit top and a jacket with long sleeves.

For warmer weather, juniors will choose a floral stripe silk in orange and pink with wide U neck, short sleeves and little waist bows at a little waist. Patent bags for spring are lined with red or with a dark paisley print. We like a white oval with bright red lining.

News Of The Theatres

his actors move and speak with force and pace. He is fortunate in Danny Dietz, the "Jonah," a young actor with skills and talents surprisingly well developed in one of his years. (Has he slowed down on some of those hard-to-catch lines since opening night?)

The Chapel Deacons know how to choose a play that will go well in Chapel, and the intimate confines of the choir give a special immediacy to Herr Rutenhorn's consideration of modern man.

(The following review of "Henry IV," Theatre Intime's current production, was written for TOWN TOPICS by Leon-Francois Hoffman, Assistant Professor in the Department of Romance Languages at Princeton University.)

PIRANDELLO OFFERED
Production Well Received. Playing Pirandello well is a difficult task indeed. Many a highly-trained professional company has attempted it and failed, yet the Theatre Intime production of "Henry IV" is surprisingly good.

Many things seem obviously wrong with it, and still the overall performance is very satisfactory: a truly Pirandellian state of affairs. I found the costumes very poor.

As Marchesa Matilda Spina, Miss Lumsden is shrill and moves awkwardly. William Pierce as Baron Tito Belcredi unsuccessfully mixes Florentine sophistication and Neapolitan emphasis.

For some obscure reason, David Cain acts Dr. Dionysius Genoni with a burlesque-show version of a German accent. Actors should remember that accents and mannerisms are most difficult to "project."

Jim Hatch in the modest part of Fino is excellent. The other three counsellors jump about aimlessly and speak their lines with such gusto that they become incomprehensible. Sandy Matthews as Charles di Nullo looks like a freshman confused by "La Dolce Vita."

And yet, the production is good. Reed Armstrong, as Henry IV, is absolutely first-rate. He changes moods with superb ease, moves admirably, uses his hands with restraint.

One minute he is frightheing, the next calm regal. Whether he whispers or screams, his elocution is perfect and, given Murray Theatre's acoustics, this is of no little importance.

CLANBAKE DISH: Lovely Clara Lee provides the femininity in "Sergeants 3," continuing through Tuesday at the Playhouse.

Whenever Reed Armstrong is on stage, illusion is produced and an amateur performance becomes the magic of true theatre. It is to be hoped that we shall see him again, soon and often.

The staging is good and the lighting is excellent. Henry IV is, like most of Pirandello, a play within a play whose actors act at pretending to be acting, so that the audience is never quite sure about the reliability of what it sees. Perhaps director Paul Glicker has purposely contrasted the masterful performance of Reed Armstrong with the obviously amateurish one of the rest of the cast. If such is the case, it is a wonderful idea, and we can assume that Pirandello would have approved.

At any rate, the Theatre Intime has proved once again that it is capable of presenting good, original and always interesting productions. It richly deserves the support of the Princeton community.

TRYOUTS ANYONE?

P. J. & B. Invites. All amateurs and professionals in the Princeton area have been invited to try out for the spring musical that will be staged April 27 and 28 by the P. J. & B. Players, who gave Princeton last year's "Guys and Dolls."

Tryouts will be held this Thursday and Sunday and appointments should be made by calling McCarter Theatre, WA 1-8700. The musical, to be directed by Milton Lyon, has not yet been selected.

REAL INDIANS!

For Children's Program. "We want to overcome the stereotype of the Indian that children see on TV and in the movies," says Red Thunder Cloud, describing the program he presents before young audiences. "We try to give children an understanding of Indians as people like themselves, but with their own traditions and way of life."

Red Thunder Cloud, a Catawba Indian, will bring his dancers to McCarter Theatre at 3:30, Tuesday, March 20 under the auspices of the Children's Entertainment Committee of the Borough FTA.

He and his company will offer the young audience a chance to participate in the activities of an Indian village, and to see the way eastern woodland Indians lived before the white man came.

In full regalia, the members of his inter-tribal group—Brave-Bird Navarro, Heather Flower, Smiling Swan and Little Feather—will perform authentic versions of many colorful Indian dances.

Tickets are $1.50, $1 and 60 cents and are available by reservation, from Mrs. W. V. O'Neil, 115 Lafayette Road between 1 and 3 p.m. weekdays.

PERIWIG TO PRESENT

"Man Who Came to Dinner." The Lawrenceville School Periwig Club will present the Kaufman and Hart comedy, "The Man Who Came to Dinner," March 8, 9 and 10. The three performances will be held in the school's Memorial Hall.

The play is said to have been inspired by the unpredictable conduct of the late Alexander Woollcott, famed as a man of insults and collector of celebrities. The leading role of Sheridan Whiteside will be played by faculty instructor James Callahan. The faculty director is Peter Chandler.

Two students from Princeton will have a part in the production. Gordon Lutz will serve as co-costume director and John Tassie as an assistant technician.

assignment to an engineering firm.

The cost of the re-alignment has been estimated at $120,000 of which the Township will pay one-third and the abutting property owners two-thirds.

Asked by Henry J. Frank, 273 Jefferson Road, whether this was the best use of the Township's $40,000, Committeeman John S. Mount cited the accident rate on the hilly curve and the traffic increase to be borne by the road when the Sacred Heart, and Country Day Schools and the new Second Presbyterian Church have been built.

Committee also passed, unanimously, a resolution on police salaries. Patrolmen, during their first year, will receive $5,000, rising gradually to $6,300 at the end of five years.

Starting with the 10th year, policemen will receive a $250 increment every five years, which will be added to their base pay. A man with 25 years of service would, by this scale, receive $1,000 more than his base pay.

This system, proposed and drawn up by Mayor Fairman, has since been adopted by many of the other municipalities throughout the state, including the Borough, as an incentive to young men interested in a police career.

Other key Township salaries, approved by Committee, include $12,000 for Mr. Nini, $12,900 for Engineer James Breth, $8,500 base pay for Police Chief James B. Campbell, Jr. and $7,400 for Police Lt. Richard Steiner.

NEW PLANS, OLD PLANS

Before Township. The next hearing in the "Mansgrove" multiple housing series will be held this Friday in Township Hall at 7.30. Zoning Officer Joseph Shinn hopes that the subsequent hearing can be scheduled for regular Zoning Board meeting next Thursday. At the Township Planning Board meeting next Monday, the third revision of the "Brookstone" revised preliminary will be presented, and changed street names of Section I of "Winfield," the Hunt and Augustine Great Road project, will be requested.

The Planning Board's checking committee will review Shady Brook, Stonehaven, Sacred Heart, Island Development and Hunt and Augustine changes which the Board had asked the developers to make. The plans of Cornelia Jaynes to make a serious picture, it should be a dramatic bombshell from the point of view of talent. However, they continue to point their efforts to comedy, and the result is fun for them and the audience.

"Sergeants" is a satire on the old epic, "Gunga Din," shifted to the American frontier. Sinatra, Peter Lawford and Dean Martin are the three sergeants; Sammy Davis, Jr., is the waterboy; and Joey Bishop and the Crosby brothers show up, too. The film is played strictly for laughs, and if you are amused by the antics of the "clan," you will love it.

The script was probably ad-lib, with lots of private jokes, but the pace is fast enough to cover over the bad lines and cliches. High points include a magnificent poker game with Martin and the inevitable last-minute rescue. In color and wide-screen. Comment: a real nice clanbake.

Satan Never Sleeps (March 14-20) is a strange mixture of warmth, humor and brutality which comes across as an engaging human drama. Produced and directed by Leo McCarey, it follows the unshamed tradition of his two earlier pictures dealing with priests, "Going My Way" and "The Bells of St. Mary's."

Satan is couched in both the sadistic ideals of Communism and the angelic smile of female temptation in the film. Resisting the devil in occupied China are two Catholic priests, portrayed with believable vitality by William Holden and Clifton Webb. The temptations are in the persons of Weaver Lee as a Communist Army Colonel and France Nuyen as a young girl infatuated with Holden.

Based on a story by Pearl Buck, the film begins with an easy-going air, but soon turns into a series of brutal and melodramatic scenes, including the rape of Miss Nuyen, the machine-gunning of Lee's parents and the rebellion of the villagers. The movie sometimes slips into sentimentality and melodrama, but usually is moving and lifelike. In color and widescreen. Comment: slick cinema.

THE GARDEN

A Summer to Remember (March 7-13) is another import from Russia under the continuing cultural exchange program. From the same studio that produced last year's powerful "Ballad of a Soldier," this film has the same qualities of simplicity and universalism without propaganda.

Set in modern Russia, the story could take place anywhere in the world. It concerns a young boy (Borya Barkhatov) who suddenly realizes that his mother has remarried and his father will live with them. The complete change in the youngster's entire world, shattered first by the loss of his father and now by the newcomer to the affections of his mother, is studied in dramatic detail.

As the film ends with a symbolic transfer of locale, the boy begins to show the beginnings of maturity in a hostile world. Young Barkhatov is a charming boy with a talent certain to be envied in Hollywood. The picture has won awards at the Stratford and Karlovy Vary International Film Festivals. Comment: excellent Russian insight.

are now before the state Water Policy Commission, whose approval is necessary before the Planning Board will give its approval. At issue is a question of diverting the brook on Dr. Jaynes' property.

CANDIDATES NAMED

In Lawrence Township, Democratic incumbents Charles E. Connell Jr. and Lloyd A. Carver have filed for reelection to the Lawrence Township Committee. Mr. Connell is mayor of the municipality.

Republicans choices to unseat them are Leroy Hephurn and Arthur R. Wenzel. The Democrats will also run the incumbent tax collector, Thomas R. Kalisch, for another term, with Thomas B. Fawcett his Republican opponent.

HOW MANY IMPORTS?

League Will Count. An "Import Countdown" designed to show how much daily life is influenced by foreign trade, will be undertaken this Friday by the 350 members of the Princeton League of Women Voters.

Starting with the morning cup of Brazilian coffee, League members will keep a tally of every import that crosses their paths during the day: German cars, Danish furniture, Scottish wool, French cosmetics, Formosan tea.

Results will be counted and evaluated by the League's Foreign Policy Study Group and then made public. Mrs. Earl C. Tanner is chairman of the group.

The purpose of the Countdown is to dramatize the trade legislation due for discussion by Congress in April. The League has arranged a trade exhibit in the Princeton Public Library and will offer its booklet, "The Politics of Trade," for sale in Princeton bookstores.

At Borough Schools. The annual Borough PTA book fair will open Tuesday at 8 with an open house for parents at the Nassau Street School auditorium. More than 300 books, on loan from the Book Mart, will be displayed, and parents may talk to teachers and members of the Fair committee about them.

A short business meeting will begin at 8:30, to be conducted by Mrs. J. Merrill Knapp, PTA president. The slate for next year's board will be announced at that time.

Children in both the Nassau and Witherspoon schools will be able to inspect the books and choose the ones they wish to buy before the end of the fair on Friday, March 16.

Members of the Nassau Street Fair committee are Mrs. Robert A. Lively, chairman, Mrs. John Shy, Mrs. Robert H. Dicke, Mrs. Edward L. Kern, Mrs. Ralph Kleiber, Mrs. Arthur Link, Mrs. E. E. Smith and Mrs. Robert A. Webb. At Witherspoon, Mrs. John H. Ahrens is in charge of the Fair. She is assisted by Mrs. William Turnbull.

Dr. Wigner Backs Shelters.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Several objections have been raised against the Civil Defense program in letters to TOWN TOPICS. Unfortunately, some of the authoritative-sounding statements are incorrect or grossly exaggerate the acknowledged limitations of Civil Defense.

Further, the vehement tone of some of the letters makes me wonder whether the writers' distaste for Civil Defense would be mitigated however effective shelters might be. Other critics seem to demand that the supporters of the shelter program advocate other measures, not shelters.

This would be difficult for some of us who are convinced that Civil Defense is at present the most effective way in which the population at large can contribute to the preservation of peace and freedom.

In particular, the desire to avoid a conflict does not, by itself, guarantee peace. This is well known to the deer who defends himself against the wolf, or to the Hungarian negotiators of 1956 who were dragged from the conference table to prison and thence to the execution block.

"The Principal Danger." According to the original anti-shelter statement, the "principal danger of the present program is the false sense of security engendered." The danger cannot be very great, then, because all reputable supporters of the shelter program, including all those attacked in your columns, emphasize certain limitations in the protection afforded by shelters. We can believe that the shelter program is worth-while without a false sense of absolute security.

Another reason given for opposing Civil Defense is that "we may be more willing to 'go to the brink' of war if we have shelters. Should we not fear much more that our enemies will 'go the brink,' and beyond, if we do nothing to protect ourselves? Should not the events of the last decade have demonstrated to all of us from which source aggression is more likely to come?"

How Severe Are The Limitations? It is generally admitted that even a very primitive shelter reduces the most dreaded effect of a nuclear explosion, that of the radiation, to less than 1% of its value outside. This may make the difference between virtually no harm and the most dire consequences if the radiation dose outside the shelter is between 500 and 10,000 units.

It is true that a nuclear explosion has other effects against which a shelter is less effective. The principal one of these is heat, and this is the one mostly played up and exaggerated in anti-shelter statements.

The estimates are based on a 100 megaton explosion, and even though the USSR has no deliverable weapon of this size, I also will assume such an explosion. It would, on a clear day, set many weathered wooden houses within 50 miles of the explosion on fire, if these are not in the shade of trees but in clear sight of the explosion.

For a freshly painted house, the distance would be 35 miles under similar conditions. On a somewhat cloudy day, the distance would be reduced to 25 miles even for weathered and unshaded houses. The anti-shelter statement gives a radius of 60 miles and omits all qualifications.

If an area is thickly built up with wooden structures, and if there is no moisture on the house walls, a fire storm may result. In such a storm there is a strong wind toward the center of the explosion, and it is claimed that people would suffocate under such conditions. There is too little experience either to assert or to contradict this with assurance.

However, a shelter with a good door would provide considerable protection and the very strength of the wind would shorten the time during which the air would contain too little oxygen. The average family shelter contains enough oxygen for more than four hours. Admittedly, there are horrible perils to contemplate, but we do not make them less likely by refusing to protect ourselves.

What would it cost? A simple fallout shelter is estimated to cost $200 per person. For the whole nation, this is a very high sum—around 36 billion dollars, or about three years' automobile bills. A fallout and blast shelter, which would give much more protection than the shelters discussed above, is estimated to cost $500 per person if built economically and on a community basis.

Such shelters seem to be desirable for about half of the population, living close to target areas; their construction would add another 27 billion dollars to the expense. The total is, nevertheless, less than one-eighth of the national income for a single year, and the whole of a year's income is, of course, a small fraction of our entire capital investment mentioned in the anti-shelter statement.

The Aftermath: How soon would the nation recover from a nuclear attack? This is difficult to predict, and everyone hopes that it will always remain unknown.

The speedy recovery of Western Europe and of Japan after World War II gives us hope and, surely, the more complete our shelter protection is, the easier and speedier will be the recovery.

The Principal Danger: In my opinion, the principal danger is that the limitations of the Shelter Program are so much stressed that many people may become discouraged and do nothing. Certainly, most of us have no better opportunity to "engage in an active search for peace." At the same time, it is clear that there is no effect of nuclear explosions which cannot be reduced by shelters.

The anti-shelter statements make sense to me only if I assume that their writers consider aggression by this country, rather than by Soviet Russia, the principal danger to peace. Few of our fellow citizens will accept such an assumption.

Do we do all we should? No, we do not. The role of Civil Defense in making a nuclear war less likely has not been adequately explained to the general public. Similarly, not enough opportunities have been provided for the general public to learn about different types of shelters, their construction and use.

There are few places where the average citizen can go to obtain detailed advice if he wants to build his own shelter. We have failed to do all that we could.

EUGENE P. WIGNER

Twenty Thousand Fences.

To the Editor of Town Topics: In the debate over the Township's Dog Ordinance, the only complaint seems to be against the presence of dogs on school playgrounds, where they frighten the younger children and sometimes bite them.

We can prevent this nuisance at one-hundredth the cost that is proposed and, at the same time, preserve the traditional beauty of Princeton.

The remedy is simple: fence in the playgrounds of the younger children with a really efficient fence that is not over four feet high. Dogs that can clear such a barrier are restrained as a matter of course. Thus we shall have five or six fences rather than the 20,000 that would spring up all over town, spoiling the vistas that have made Princeton an earthly Paradise.

I cannot believe that Princeton dog-lovers will leash themselves to their pet every time he wants to go out. That is done only in New York, where the leash is protection against the much greater danger of the motor car. No: they will build thousands of fences (rather than the six that I propose), and then Princeton will be an eye-sore.

Another argument is that some dogs molest postmen and milkmen. I do not see how either fences or leashes will prevent that, since these men must come right up to the house. Perhaps we should give them authority to use light whips.

I am also told that dogs damage flowers and shrubs. So do birds, but no one argues that anyone who likes birds should keep a cageful at home, and that all the rest should be destroyed by bacteriological warfare. For that matter, so do small boys, but I hear no argument that small boys should be kept on a leash. For really expensive plants, there are relatively inexpensive fences. We can afford the small fraction of ordinary plants that our fellow-creatures destroy.

I shall vote against the ordinance because I like to see dogs romping together—not penned in solitary confinement. They are more beautiful than our human population—with possibly nine or ten exceptions.

Education, Not Shelters.

To the Editor of Town Topics: There has been quite a lively discussion on fallout shelters in your paper lately. It seems to me that the very basic issue has been forgotten.

I'LL TELL YOU IF YOU TELL ME: Both John Reed (left) and Tom Johnson have some reservations about any exchange of space information between Russia and the United States. As do many others, their question if Russia can be trusted to live up to any agreement. (Staff Photo.)

Question of the Week

Question: Do you think the United States should pool its space information with that of Russia's as Premier Khrushchev has suggested?
Where asked: Palmer Square.

Jerold C. Mathews, 43 Edge-more Avenue, Plainsboro, mathematician: Yes, I think it would be an excellent idea.
First of all, though there may be some military implications involved, they are of such a minor matter that the country need not worry about this aspect of it. Combining space information would, I feel, 1) help to further relations between the two countries, and
2) substantially help us get into outer space. The scientific liaison would be very beneficial to both countries.

Mrs. Cross Bradberry, 77 Westerly Road: I most certainly do not. I just don't trust them. They've never kept their word; why should we expect them to keep it to this?

Mehner Lander, 186 Laurel Avenue, owner of Marsh & Co. No. 1 I don't think so. They don't tell us anything; why should we give all our knowledge to them? I figure I'm paying for it and they don't do anything for me, if you want to face the facts, I don't mind us working together but for us to give them intricate information, I think, is dangerous. How do we know they would give us all they know?

Mrs. John Reilly, Lakeside Apartments, Faculty Road, assistant librarian, Firestone Library: Yes, I think any scientific question is worth pooling information so long as it doesn't pertain to any type of warfare. I think we can have more friendly relations if we can establish a field in which we have common interests such as space exploration. This might be a good stepping stone toward even better relations between Russia and the U.S.

John Reed, 20 Murray Place, electrician: No, not until Russia accepts the United States' proposal of free inspection of nuclear arms and installations.

If they would be willing to do this, then I think we can assume they will not hold any space information back. A free exchange of ideas would be invaluable not only to us but to the whole world.

Tom Johnson, 35 Park Place, assistant manager of R. F.
Johnson's: Yes, if Russia and the U.S. got together and agreed on a way of exchanging information and then stick to it. If Russia violated this agreement, it would endanger our national security and the safety of the free world. At the moment there is nothing to keep us from knowing whether or not they might withhold certain information.

John Harris, Myrtle Beach,
S. C., construction superintendent of Holiday Lodge, U.S. 1:
It depends on what our intelligence has found out. If the CIA feels we have a definite edge on Russia in space, then I think the answer should be,
"No." If not, then I think we ought to pursue the possibility of an exchange of information.

Charles Cook, Blair Hall, Princeton University junior:
No, because I don't think it possible to get complete reci-procation with the Russians.
They might withhold critical information.

Edward Faros, Franklin
Park, owner of Queenston Builders, Inc.: I frankly don't believe you can work with them in any faith at all. I don't think you can make agreements with them and expect them to live up to them. I think the only thing that Russia will respect and understand is a greater strength on our part — that we get way out in front of them not only in space but in all fields. I just don't think we can work with them, under their present form of government. This, of course, isn't true of the Russian people as a whole.

Mrs. Polly K. Lyons, 234 Moore Street, research assistant: No, I don't think we should, not at this time, because of their past performance of disloyalty. I distrust them. In my opinion, they have done nothing to change their status. I would want to know right away what they were after. They weasel on everything. I would say, "Beware of Russians bearing gifts."

Leon Goldberg, East Brunswick, physicist: I think it might be a good idea. It seems a good way to cut expenditures for armaments and to put them into something more useful to man.

Miss Betty Swan, Tenacre Foundation, housekeeper:
That's the question. Will Premier Khrushchev be honest?
He makes promises but he always changes them. He never agrees to anything or carries it through. I'm afraid he'll do nothing but hem and haw on this, just as he's done in the past on the issue of open nuclear inspection.

Roy Minet, 1937 Hall, Princeton University junior: I think it would be a good idea if it could be worked out in such a way that we could be sure they weren't holding information back. As far as the idea of exchanging information between the two countries, I think it's great. Anything for science.

Mrs. Sylvia Doderer, 61 Union Drive, Whitehorse, secretary: Yes, if both sides are fair and cooperate in exchanging information faithfully.

SCHOOL IS PLAY. Mrs. Edgar Smith, teacher for 15 years of the boys and girls at Princeton Cooperative Nursery School, holds on her lap a visitor, Deborah Bergman. At the end of the morning, Mrs. William Ronald and her daughter Suzanne (left) work with Susan Claghorn to make sure everything is put away for tomorrow. The "helping mother" is a fixture of nursery school policy. More about the school in story, this page. (Staff Photos) one child will decide to be an elephant, another a precise soldier, but it is a march, and the child as expected to respond to it as a marcher, not as a free-wheeling waltzing doll.

Mrs. Beller uses music and songs freely and imaginatively and no parents will ever again hear Chopin's "Butterfly" Etude without the memory of 16 spinning children pretending to be airplanes.

Problems for the Future. Fifteen years of enthusiastic, sometimes almost messianic, parents have sent their children to Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Beller for the enrichment provided by a school in which parents are so fully and reswardly involved, but today the school is beginning to find itself trapped by its own principles.

Rising costs have forced its original $10 monthly fee to $28-$30, often beyond the means of the very families the school would like so much to have.

Compounding this problem is the fact that a family with slim financial resources often has a working mother who cannot be "helping," and the school is uncompromising on this rule. It has had to reject, in sorrow, many mothers who would not be able to participate.

"ROSE COTTAGE" IS 15 Time To Apply. Princeton's oldest non-commercial nursery school is now accepting applications for its 13th year. Toddlers in the first class who dribbled juice on their overalls and chirped "This Old Man, He Plays One," are now rounding out their freshman year in college.

The lady who wiped the juice from the overalls is still doing so from younger garments, and the lady who taught the children to sing "This Old Man" still teaches the song to boys and girls whose parents were in high school when the first class learned the words.

The school, of course, is "Rose Cottage," more formally, but less frequently, known as the Princeton Cooperative Nursery School.

Founded in 1947, the school held forth in Rose Cottage until the Borough condemned the building in 1957 and children now gather five mornings a week in the Knights of Columbus Home, 111 Prospect.

It is a school with a vital and deep-rooted esprit that is unusual in such institutions, an esprit that has its base in the personalities of Mrs. Edgar Smith, its teacher from the start, and Mrs. Elmer Beller, the "music lady."

Mrs. Smith is a woman of massive and uncanny calm and wisdom where little children are concerned, and Mrs. Beller is that rarity, a musician who can inspire music in children without being folksy.

So closely have these women been identified with the school, Mrs. Smith in particular, that it is often referred to as "Mrs. Smith's school," to the dismay of that lady herself.

Parents' School. Founded by Mrs. Paul Strayer and Mrs. Edward Devereux (no longer living in Princeton), the school has been a cooperative from the first, and actually belongs to the parents whose children are in attendance at the moment.

Parents run the school, decide its policies and support its finances. Mothers help with the children and fathers con-

Going Back

Families who apply to the Princeton Cooperative Nursery School (and applications should be made to Mrs. Herbert Abelson, 137 Loomis Court) may find that they are in for stretch that could amount to a decade or more.

One family has sent four of its five daughters to the school and three families have sent three of their four children there. The only reason the extra child didn't go, in each case, is that he was too old when the school was founded.

Many families have sent two children and several now have their third child in the wings, ready to enter.

tribute carpentry and book-keeping.

There are, of course, many similar schools in Princeton today, most of them with modification of this plan, but "Rose Cottage" was the first.

Wide Contacts Sought. The basic idea is to provide young children—and their parents—with broad contacts that reach across social, economic and cultural lines. White and Negro, University faculty and clerk, rich and poor—all are invited, in fact, anxiously urged, to apply for membership.

Linked with this basic, is the idea that nursery school is a family experience, an extension of the home and not a substitute for it while mother goes shopping.

"Every mother helps one morning every three weeks," Mrs. Smith explains, "and this is an unbreakable rule. In some schools that call themselves, 'cooperative,' this rule is diluted by allowing the mother to pay for a substitute, but we don't allow that."

The "helping mother" of the day pours juice and helps to clean up when noon comes, but she is more than a domestic.

She is responsible for all 15 children if Mrs. Smith has to take the 16th on her lap and comfort a cut lip. She is in charge of the north end of the playground if Mrs. Smith is at the south end on a vital diplomatic mission.

She is also an observer, watching the way her child maneuvers among other children, watching (and learning from) Mrs. Smith's adroitness in coping with tears, balkiness or withdrawal, watching the way of other children who have been brought up differently from her own.

Freedom, With Discipline. "We give children freedom, within a circle of routine," Mrs. Smith says. "You can choose whatever you want to do, but it must not be snatched away from somebody else, and it must be put away when you are through. Blocks are for building, not hitting. Jungles are for climbing, not for wrestling matches."

Even in music, the freedom-within-a-frame principle is followed to a marching tune.

MISS GURISIC TO RUN

Among the proposals she has been working on are evening meetings of the Freeholders so the public will be able to attend, more communication and cooperation between the County government and the Somerset municipalities, the "ideal" situation that Freeholders should serve on a full-time basis, keeping regular office hours; and that County employees should not hold dual jobs.

LET'S BE FRIENDS

Say Girl Scouts, Princeton's Girl Scouts celebrated "International Friendship" month during February by inviting guests from foreign lands to speak to their troops.

Troop 14, 4th-grade Brownies at Nassau Street School, led by Mrs. John Mack and Mrs. William Warrat, invited Miss Frances Mack to describe her experiences as an American Field Service student living with an Italian family.

Valley Road School's 4th grade Brownies were hostesses to Mrs. Sergio Rodriguez who taught the troop a Philippine song and dance, "Planting Rice." A native of Wales, Mrs. Jacques Fresco, will speak at the March meeting. Mrs. H. J. Frank and Mrs. M. J. Glinka are leaders of this troop.

BUSINESS In Princeton

THE PAINT IS DRY
 Princeton Inn Ready. Remodeling and redecorating operations that began last May at the Princeton Inn have now been completed — almost — and the new dining and cocktail rooms at the Alexander Street hostelry are ready for their public.

The Inn will resume this Thursday the weekly buffet which was temporarily suspended while the carpenters and masons were rebuilding
 the dining-room.

Visitors who go to the Inn
 this Thursday for the first buffet in the new South Room will find that the old upper level of the public dining room is now a modern cocktail lounge with an island of green plants in a pool, a colorful Oriental bead curtain to screen off the bar, and pleasing rust leather cocktail chairs.

Beyond the lounge is the new South Room, a large public dining room seating 300 guests (on similar rust leather chairs) with a warm color scheme of pale maize table linen, green and gold star patterned rug, and star chandeliers with mosaic reflectors.
 Against the south and west window walls, the Inn has hung drawn-work linen drapes to screen the sun but allow the light to sift through. The center of the room can be converted to a dance-floor.

All Modern. Throughout the new portions of the Inn, a modern scheme of decor has been followed, with deep walnut paneling, full carpeting of mustard tweed or the star pattern, and linen or grass textured wall papers.

Adjoining the new cocktail lounge, where the lower dining level used to be, the Inn has built two private dining rooms, one seating 20 persons, one 40.
 Separated from each other and from the main South Room by walnut panels, these rooms can be thrown together by deflating the partition support and allowing the partition to open, then closed off again by the simple device of blowing air into the supporting panel.

These dining rooms will open onto a patio overlooking Springdale golf course and joined to the present terrace
 by a small flight of steps.

Downstairs, on the ground level, the Inn has built a spacious office suite for the staff,
 a meeting room, a ladies' room (with theatrical lights around the mirror) and a wide entry leading directly to the parking lot.

More Parking. By the first of August, the Inn will have completed a new entry here on the south, allowing diners to alight from cars under a porte-cochere, enter the Inn and reach the South dining room by means of a broad, handsomely appointed stair without having to go through the lobby.

The present dormitory for employees, which houses 50 persons, will be enlarged to accommodate 100, and when the addition has been completed, the two old houses on Alexander Street in which employees have been living will be razed and the area used for parking. When the lot has been finished, the Inn will be able to park 150 cars.

Remodeling has given the Inn, besides the parking space,
 a total of 10 meeting rooms and private dining rooms and six additional bedrooms which were once the office suite.

FIRM NAMES TWO

NEW POST CREATED
 At Applied Data, Richard C.
 Jones has been appointed to the new position of Sales Manager at Applied Data Research, Inc.

Before joining ADR, Mr.
 Jones served for two years as industrial organizations and government installations.

Ellwood Kauffman, president ated as a result of the firm's continued growth in the field of digital computer programming and consulting. Mr. Jones will co-ordinate all sales activities on a nation-wide scale.

TWO SATELLITES A MONTH
 That's RCA. In '62, RCA will deliver to the nation an average of two satellites or space vehicles a month during 1962.

The deliveries will include more TIROS meteorological satellites, and satellites for Project RELAY transoceanic communications experiments,
 both for the NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center.

To accommodate the engineering and administrative work necessary to produce the satellites, RCA next fall will open two new buildings comprising more than 100,000 square feet of space.

The new facilities, which will bring the total RCA Space Center area to more than 300,- 000 square feet, will consist of two main two-story buildings
 each 100 feet wide and 240

SPORTS In Princeton

TIGERS FINISH THIRD
In Three Leagues, Victories achieved last weekend in basketball, hockey and swimming enabled Princeton teams to earn third-place finishes in the final Ivy standings. If any one of them reaches a higher status next winter it will come as something of a surprise.

In the case of the swimmers, a steady rejuvenation of the sport on the Princeton campus appears to have hit its natural peak—one step below the level of Harvard and Yale. The Crimson recorded something of an upset Saturday by defeating the Elis, 48-47, for the first time in 24 years, but unusual freshman strength this winter is expected to return Yale to its accustomed pinnacle next season. The Tigers may continue to dominate the rest of the also-rans for a while, but ascendancy to the top rung does not appear possible.

Despite a sub-par freshman team this year, Harvard's domination of the Ivy Hockey League—seven championships in the last nine years—is likely to go unchallenged in 1963. Losing only two seniors, Doug Davis and Joe Sprague, and bolstered by a freshman squad that Pete Cook coached to a solid 11-2-1 season, Princeton should be the top contender next winter.

Hockey at Princeton is, however, an unpredictable, often frustrating sport. In sharp contrast to other squads—notably football, basketball and lacrosse—the players frequently show an unwillingness to hustle, are often guilty of the same mistake in action at the end of the season that they were making at the beginning.

Slightly Outcoored. In six consecutive periods—the last two against Cornell, the entire Harvard game and the first period against Dartmouth, Princeton was outcoored, 19 to 3. Any sort of continuation of that calibre of play and they might as well board over the Rink's surface to alleviate the crowded facilities in Dillon Gym.

Fortunately for the sanity of Baker's faithful Rink Rats, the spark was rekindled in the final two rounds against Dartmouth and the season ended on a more hopeful note with a come-from-behind 7-6 victory at the Indians' expense. It took some doing on the part of a sub-par Dartmouth defense, but ability to erase the four-goal deficit that existed at the end of the first period was much to Princeton's credit.

Johnny Cook capped an aft-

CHIEFS FOR CAMPBELL: The split second after Pete Campbell connected on this field goal against Cornell, he got a minute-long standing ovation. The reason: it raised his Ivy League three-year total to 861, breaking the mark set five years ago by Chet Forte of Columbia. (TOWN TOPICS Photo by Derek Storm.)

ernoon that saw him credited with two goals and three assists by beating the visitors' beleaguered goalie with a dribble shot which a Dartmouth defenseman helped push into the cage while he was trying to clear the puck. Down 4-0 and again 6-4, despite a three-goal surge in the first four minutes of the second period, Princeton finally drew even at 6-04 of the final round to set the stage for Cook's winning shot.

It was a 7-12-1 season for the Tigers, who had the potential to leave mediocre Brown, Dartmouth and Yale teams well behind in the standings but never quite got around to doing so. That's why the Rink Rats find hockey such a frustrating sport at Princeton.

NEW COACH DUE

In Basketball. When Cappy Cappon was first felled by a heart attack in January, 1961, and it was apparent that his coaching career would not last a great deal longer, the first person to remove himself from consideration as a potential successor was Jake McCandless. The University understandably tapped McCandless, Cappy's assistant in the sport, to pinch-hit in mid-season a year ago, and then again when the second heart attack proved fatal four days before the season opened last fall.

But football is Jake's first love, and the need to begin drilling the basketball team on November 1 would raise hob with his duties as Dick Colman's backfield coach while the Tigers prepare for their climatic November games against Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth. "I prefer under no circumstances," he told University athletic officials months ago, "to be considered as a possible successor to Cappon."

So the pleasant, soft-spoken McCandless is about to resign his status as basketball coach at Princeton—one that always bore the prefix of "acting," even though it was generally disregarded. A year ago, he had shown his ability in guiding the Tigers to the Ivy championship despite the problems attendant to stepping into the job at mid-season.

This year, loss of the title to Yale and a third-place finish was largely the familiar story of a veteran team which learned too late the cost of complacency. The Elis' combination of senior Bill Madden and a fine collection of sophomores had the desire which Princeton players felt could be replaced by experience. The result was transfer of a championship from Princeton, N. J., to New Haven, Conn.

It is possible that announcement of a permanent successor for Cappy will be made this month. If it proves to be Bill Van Breda Kolff, one-time standout player here and now a highly successful coach at Hofstra, a lot of Princeton basketball fans will be delighted.

Academic problems cut short Van Breda Kolff's career in the sport at Princeton, but he added to his reputation as a member of the New York Knickerbockers and since then has repeatedly put his Hofstra teams into sports-page headlines through his coaching ability. His arrival on the Dillon Gym scene with the start of Bill Bradley's varsity career at Princeton would be a fascinating development next fall.

STRONG FINISH

For Basketball Team, Victory in its last seven games enabled Princeton's basketball team to top the .500 mark for the season (13-10) and to edge Cornell for third place in the league. The Tigers won a ding-dong affair from the Ithacans Saturday, 67 to 65, after routing last-place Columbia on Friday, 82 to 47.

With Yale topping Dartmouth Friday and Penn edging Cornell in double overtime, first and second places were decided by those outcomes.

Bantams Split

Princeton's Bantam Hockey Team gained an even break on its New England invasion last weekend, defeating the lower school at Exeter, 2-0, but losing to Belmont Hill, 1-0.

Roy Coppedge and Warren Baker scored for the Princetonians at Exeter. Coach John Bernard credited Rick Delano with an outstanding performance in the goal on both occasions, adding that the unbeaten Belmont Hill sextet was held to its lowest score of the season by the visitors.

A week earlier, the Princeton Pee-Wees were blanked, 1-0, by Riverside-Greenwich in their Madison Square Garden appearance. The New England trip concluded the 1962 season for the scores of hockey players of the 10-14 age bracket in Princeton.

Sports In Princeton

The Elis have drawn Wake Forest, Atlantic Coast Conference champion, in the first-round NCAA playoff Monday at the Palestra and are unlikely to defeat such rugged opposition.

After Pete Campbell had collected 29 points against Columbia, interest on Saturday centered not on the outcome of the game against Cornell but on his ability to break Chet Forte's three-year Ivy scoring record. The Tiger senior, needing a dozen points, made matters tough for himself by getting only four in the first half and missing several foul shots in the process.

Despite the extremely tenacious guarding of Cornell's Ray Ratkowski, who had held him to nine at Ithaca, Campbell half to hit in the second half. His total mounted to 10, and at 8:13 of the final half, he hit on his favorite jump shot from the top of the foul circle to raise his three-year output to 861.

The Ho-ho-kos resident finished with 16 for the evening and 864 Ivy points while at Princeton. He also holds the career scoring mark here with 1451, in addition to the one-year record of 501 which he set as a sophomore.

Only a tremendous last-game performance by Captain Al Kaemmerlen kept the Tigers from being upset by Cornell. His 19 points in the first half engineered a 36-23 lead, and when a persistent rally by the visitors finally brought them even at 56-all, his superlative rebounding tipped the outcome in Princeton's favor.

Over the weekend, Kaemmerlen was credited with 39 rebounds and 40 points, and in the Cornell game he outplayed and outlasted both Gerry Krumbein and Bob Turrell, who had a height edge on him. He and Campbell appear solid bets to repeat on the all-Ivy team with Campbell joining the ranks of the very few players who have made it three years straight.

LAKEWOOD FIVE WINS

PHS Tournament Dreams End. Any hopes that the Princeton High School basketball team may have had of capturing the Central Jersey Group 3 title and even the Group 3 state crown were rudely shattered Saturday against the reality of a first-round 74-48 defeat administered by Lakewood. The end came in Asbury Park's spacious Convention Hall.

For the Little Tigers, the adage that a good big team will beat a good small team was more than just words. It was unassailable fact. Led by 6'5" Marty Engel and 6'2" Ken Hicks, who combined for 45 points, the taller Piners completely dominated the boards. Princeton's center, John Bessinger, 6-11½, was the only losing starter over 6 feet.

"We have no excuses," said PHS coach Tony Borzok. "They had the better ball club. We just didn't play our best game. They had a lot of height and we lacked the one big man who could have pulled in 20 rebounds for us. They were up and we lacked tournament experience. (PHS last participated in the NJSIAA tournament in 1936).

In addition, fouls plagued the losers as much as Lakewood's superior height. Three-fifths of the Blue and White's starting team, Charlie Pemberton, Hank Schmidt and top scorer George Tucker who carried a 24 point average into the game, were forced to leave the game in the fourth period. Pemberton had four against him before the end of the first half.

PHS rallied for eight straight points shortly before the end of the half to close the margin to 36 to 28. But Lakewood continued to draw away, outscoring the Little Tigers by seven in the third canto and by 11 in a meaningless final period.

CHIEF ARCHITECTS: George Tucker and Coach Tony Borzok were key figures in Princeton High School basketball team's rise to a fine 16-3 mark during the regular season that ended last week. For an estimate of Tucker's value to the Little Tigers, see "We Congratulate," page 26. (Staff Photo.)

That the ball was hounding in Lakewood's favor was illustrated by the performance of Hicks who made 22 points, after having never scored more than 10 in his career. Tucker with 14 and Schmidt with 11 were the only PHS players in double figures. It was Lakewood's 22nd win in 25 games and Princeton's fourth setback in 20 outings.

Despite the defeat, the game ended a highly successful season for the Blue and White. "The boys did a good job," said Borzok. "They created some enthusiasm for the sport which had been lacking. They opened it up for next year by showing what could be done."

The only starter to return will be Hank Schmidt, 5'11" junior. Backing him up will be a trio of sophomores who have gained invaluable experience this year. They are Don Cooper, Larry Madden and Dave Barbour.

SANNINO TAKES LEAD

In Industrial League. Sannino A.C. last week broke the tie that existed between it and Educational Testing Service for the past three weeks by defeating the Y quintet, 74 to 54, at the Princeton High School gym. The victory virtually tied up the championship for Sannino.

With only two weeks of play remaining, the league leaders met winless Food Machinery and Chemical this week and will have a bye in the final week of play.

RCA Labs, last year's champions, defeated RCA Astro, 41 to 27, to remain in contention for second place. The Labmen and ETS will oppose each other the final week of play. Joe Burns led the victors with 10 points.

In the final game, YMCA romped over EMC, 66 to 39. John Fitzpatrick and Dick Lannahan combined for 38 points for the Y, while Ray Cervera

STATE RECORD BROKEN

By Linda Cazin. Competing in the 23rd Annual Trenton Times Newspapers Swimming Meet held at the Trenton High School pool, Miss Linda Cazin of Burning Tree Lane, Lawrenceville, broke the existing record in the New Jersey Junior AAU 100-yard women's breaststroke Linda, a Trenton High sophomore, represented the Flying Fish Club of the Princeton YMCA.

She swam the event in 1:23, seven-tenths of a second better than the record set last year led the losers with 13. Institute for Defense Analyses had a bye.

WE Congratulate

GEORGE TUCKER
PIHS Basketball Star

Few teams rise from the ashes of a 1-15 record to 16-3 within the space of a short season, but under the guidance of Coach Tony Borzok during the past winter, Princeton High School accomplished just that. There were a number of factors which made the achievement possible, but the biggest was the all-around play of George Tucker.

At 5-11, Tucker is no giant in the sport, but his standout ability to combine driving layups with a one-handed jumper from a dozen feet away gave him a 463-point total during the regular season for a fine 24.3 average. Best proof of his value to the Little Tigers' winning ways is the fact that he accounted for 37% of their scoring.

But Tucker, son of Mrs. Naomi Tucker, 48 Birch Avenue, is also a tremendous team player. Borzok points out. He lead the team in assists, the statistics reveal, and Borzok credits him with "giving off as many points as he scored himself."

"He gives you a great second effort," the PIHS coach reports. "Driving in, he'll get off three or four shots if necessary, often in the time that another player would just be starting his second. He is very attentive to new suggestions, fits them in quickly to his style of play and remained immensely valuable to the team by never letting success go to his head."

Tucker was the point-happy "runner" who shot every time he got his hands on the ball. Rather, he averaged a fine 54% from the floor, his point totals ranging from a "low" of 15 to nine games in which he was over 25 and four in which he topped 30. His season's high was 37, recorded in the 76-65 victory over Hamilton.

A versatile athlete, Tucker was a starting end on Joe Jingo's football team last fall, his capable hands hauling in four long touchdown passes. Unfortunately for PIHS, his athletic eligibility ends this June, but happily not before he had made a major contribution to the brightest season the school has known in the sport in a number of years.

BOWLING NOTES

K of C Takes Lead. Knights of Columbus moved into first place in the "A" League with 32 points, six ahead of Yeoman's and Farmers, to highlight last week's bowling. Tiger Garage held a three-point lead over Para Lab Supply in the Industrial League, 23-20. Crescents was third with 18. Edwards moved four points ahead of Ivy Inn, 34-30, in the "B" league. Sportsmen No. 2 was third with 28.

Nassau Service ran its point total to 49 and stayed well atop the Women's Industrial League Standings. Jefferson Plumbing was second with 36, followed closely by Fulmer-Bowers with 34. Nassau Del 48, Conover Motors (44) and Annon Homes (43) led the Women's League. In the Faculty League, Accelerator (32), COB (26) and PPL (24) were out in front at week's end.

Jim Kahny tied for the week's high single with a 258 in "B" loop action. Other "B" leaders were Bill Dumble (220), Mike Zecola and Tom Friel (222), Fred Procaccini (221) and Bill Prindle and Vince Pirone (202). Norman Luck's 228 topped the Industrial League. Duke Edwards rolled 207 and George Drummond 200 in the same circuit. The second 258 game was rolled by Bill Dumble in the "A" league. He was followed by Neal Koss (246), Steve Terch (220), Bob Sculerati and Frank Deliso (214), Joe Balestrini and Jim Brogan (211), Tony Leiggi (202) and George Slakiewicz and Frank Maddalon (201). John Hamarich rolled 219 in the Faculty League.

Carol Harris recorded a 200 score to take Women's League honors. Sara Rose hit for 195 and Betty Snyder 189. Nancy Liptak's 175 was best in the Women's Industrial League. Marilyn Silvester rolled 174 and Helen Tamasi and Lillian Burrough each registered 171 games in the same league.

The Arab World Today

By Morroe Berger

"People interested in the Arab world today," the author of this book remarks, "want to know simply: what kind of person is the Arab?" Prof. Morroe Berger answers this "exasperating and forbidding question" by analyzing not only Arab personality but also Arab society.

He does so forthrightly and clearly, on the basis of his own observations and research during years of travel and residence in the Arab countries, the best historical studies of Islamic and Arab history, and the latest and most reliable investigations by Arab and other social scientists.

Much of Prof. Berger's examination of Arab social life is also relevant to other rapidly changing societies in other parts of Asia and in Africa. But he stays close to his subject, the Arab world itself.

His purpose is to give the background necessary to understand what happens there, rather than to follow the daily headlines. Nationalism, military rule, "extremism," the leaders' insistence upon economic planning and industrialization—all these are related to the religious basis that Islam has provided the Arab world and to Arab history. These forces Prof. Berger weaves into his account of current social institutions.

Especially important are Prof. Berger's analyses of these topics:

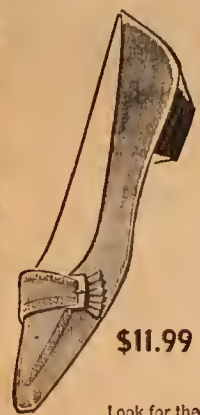

- nature of the military regimes and their meaning for democracy
- position of the middle class, about which the author is skeptical
- revolutionary potential in the changing role of women
- economic trends, concerning which he brings together up-to-date information not heretofore available
- ideological trends and "extremism" in political attitudes and behavior
- new influences of the mass media
- growth of cities and the new urbanism
- economic planning, including the prospects for industrialization
- the Arab "personality" and values as they have emerged from the influence of religion, history and the West.

On these disputed and sometimes complicated matters, Prof. Berger writes with authority and clarity, moving easily from a historical account, to a summary of a recent survey, to a personal observation.

Morroe Berger is Associate Professor of Sociology and Director of the Program in Near Eastern Studies at Princeton University. He is the author of books and articles on race relations, popular culture and the Arab world. His main works are Equality by Statute (N.Y., 1952), Bureaucracy and Society in Modern Egypt (Princeton, N. J., 1957).

since 1948, when the Soviets acquired the atomic bomb, nuclear war became obsolete. There is a balance of power, or a balance of terror, rather, which is here to stay. . . . The Russians know if they strike, we will retaliate and vice versa. Nikita Khrushchev, shoe-pounding, yelling and all,

is a clever man, a genius statesman who sweated the 40 years of post-revolutionary industrial build-up of his country and he is not going to allow the superhuman sacrifices of his people to be blown up in a few minutes by American bombs.

As for us, it is quite clear to me that we will not start the nuclear war. The baby bombs of Hiroshima lie too heavily on our national conscience. . . .

Obviously, judging by shelter promotion, we of the older generation are still thinking in old historical terms; that national differences are ultimately resolved only by armed conflict.

The younger generation, who have the benefit of being born late, feel instinctively the New Era coming: the formation of a world of tomorrow, where there will be no narrow nationalism of the past, no racial tensions and consequently, no wars. . . .

Therefore, we should not spend our money and energy on building the nuclear shelters which we will never use, but rather spend it on the education of our children so as to enable them to fight the ideological "wars" of the present and future.

Dear TRAVELEX,

Thank you for your quick letter. It takes me a while to get around to things.
You were off the dock in thirty minutes? We went through immigration with the immigrants and were detained because I forgot to sign my passport. Then when they asked for identification I goofed things up by showing them the birth mark on my big left. This all added up to much delay.
But, what the heck? We had all day. And we enjoyed the walk to Princeton. The bags got heavy but the walk was good for us.

Do you recognize any of our shigmates and Captain in this clipping? I'm so proud of Ruth. Why I never knew she was so profound. But captain, "A few stupid Americans . . ." For goodness-sake, did he mean me?
I guess I'll never put my feet under his table. I gain! (I'm joking for I like the Captain. He is a good boy. He has a tough job.)

Tell Walter that we are about to rob another bank so we can take another cruise.
But this time we are going to rob a BIG bank so we can have a slateroom on Sun Deck.

Write again. I'd write more but it's hard to see down here in the cave.

Best regards,

Anonymous
